

British Claim Victory Over Italians at Bardia; Nazis Raid Bristol and Set Fires

Army of Nile Reports One-third of 20,000 Troops Are Captured in Rout

Greeks Report Greeks Open Way for New Development Against Italians

(By The Associated Press)
Britain's desert army claimed victory today over the Italian "suicide garrison" of Bardia, Libya, in an offensive designed to root out the last vestige of Fascist military power along the western Egyptian frontier.

Without disclosing how long mopping up operations might take, Cairo headquarters of the army of the Nile said almost half of the Fascist defense positions and between a quarter and a third of the 20,000 men the retreating Italians had posted at the seaport base had been captured.

Greece, too, claimed gains against the Italians—an advance which breached their lines in the Central Albanian sector and opened the way "for an important development of the war."

A German radio broadcast heard in New York said there had been no change in the Reich's formal relations with Greece, although Italians had announced the dispatch of a German air corps to assist Italy "in the Mediterranean basin."

The radio said a reply to a question as to whether German army men would fight against Greece was declined by a spokesman "on the ground of incompetency to impart information on military matters."

Renews Prediction

Premier General John Metaxas renewed his prediction of Greek victory in a war which he said was aimed "to secure the independence and integrity of our country."

Australian shock troops were said to be wading a breach torn through the five-mile-deep system of blockhouses, barbed wire and machine gun nests guarding besieged Bardia.

The British reported last night that more than 5,000 members of the "suicide garrison" of 20,000 men at the Libyan base were captured in the first day's fierce assault.

The attack, started at dawn yesterday after a heavy, night-long aerial bombardment, was said by the British to be continuing at a speed which indicated the fortified city might fall "within a few days."

In the central sector of Albania, the Greeks reported their forces breached Italian defenses, opening the way for an "important development" in drives toward Valona, Berat, and Elbasani.

"Desperate" Italian counter-attacks in the Klisura-Tepeleni area failed to stem the Greeks, said dispatches from Athens, which reported Italian tanks put to "headlong flight."

Bremen Is Attacked

RAF bombers turned the industrial area of the German seaport of Bremen into a "sea of flames" last night in their third successive night attack on the city, the air ministry announced today.

Although Bremen is not the first German or German-held town to be raided for three nights in succession by the RAF, the British say it now is believed to have undergone heavier bombing and more severe damage than any other.

A communique, reporting attacks on other targets in Nazi and Nazi-occupied territory which were understood to include the "invasion ports," said the British bombers scored "repeated" hits in Bremen's industrial area with high explosive bombs and also dropped many incendiaries.

"Eighteen red fires were observed, four of which were large," the communique stated, "and there were so many white fires their number could not be counted. Aircraft arriving later on the scene found the target area a sea of flames."

One British plane was reported missing and a twin-engine German fighter plane was said to have been damaged.

The attacks on Bremen began Wednesday night, when 20,000 fire bombs and many high explosive missiles were reported dropped on targets which included submarine and shipbuilding yards. British sources said the raid was in partial retaliation for the fire-bombing of London by German raiders last Sunday night.

The Thursday night raid, during which RAF pilots reported finding large fires started the previous night, was described as lighter than the first. Weather conditions were not as favorable as on Wednesday, the British said.

Last night's raid was the RAF's 35th on Bremen, the British said.

Germany Alert Watches Vichy Move

Berlin, Jan. 4 (AP)—Upon the outcome of the present political struggle within France will depend the future relationship of the Reich to her defeated enemy, authorized German sources said today of the latest reports of changes in the Vichy cabinet.

"If you read French press speeches delivered in Vichy and Paris," they said, "you will observe that France is in the midst of a violent argument concerning the future of French policy."

"We don't doubt that the French people desire cooperation with Germany. But there is also no doubt that an influential clique within the French governments does not wish this and attempts sabotage. For us, a question of paramount interest is how this inter-political struggle will end."

Isles Have Begun Invasion Raids Into Nazi France

Germans Have Been Given Preview of Mass Attack Promised by Staff; Raids Spectacular

(This striking exposition of British moves toward invading the continent was written—without the restrictions of censorship—by William McGaffin, Nebraska-born Associated Press staffman who has just arrived from England, where he went through the British bombing raids after covering the Nazi Blitzkrieg in France.)

By WILLIAM MCGAFFIN
New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—Britain already has begun to invade the continent—giving the Germans a quickie preview of the mass attack British generals have promised to deliver.

I learned from an extremely reliable source shortly before leaving England three weeks ago that the British up to that time had carried off at least nine daring motorcycle raids into German-occupied France.

It's one side of the invasion picture which I believe is not generally known in the United States. The little trawler pushes softly through the channel darkness and anchors at a lonely spot on the French coast.

There is a muffled commotion as fifty khaki uniformed figures steal ashore with fifty machine-gun bearing motorcycles.

All is ready now. With a roar they dash off into the treacherous unknown of a blacked-out, enemy-occupied France. Another spectacular British sortie is in progress.

Young volunteers from the British army make up these "suicide" squads which have three principal missions:

To terrorize and harass the German forces thinly strung out to a point, some experts say, of great vulnerability over a thousand mile coastline. It's a page out of the German high command's own copybook. No effort is made to hide the identity of the men. They wear the British khaki.

Figurative Nose-Thumbing

The British general staff wants the Germans to know that Tommies from the regular army have been able to penetrate the lines of the vaunted Reichswehr—to thumb a small but defiant nose, as it were.

The British aim apparently is to bolster French morale and keep the Germans in an unending state of nervous apprehension—and to "remind" them of what Britain intends the future should hold for them, if such a feat is possible.

Germans Report Heavy Explosions Follow Raid Upon Channel Port

Fascists Meet

Rome Cabinet Gives Approval to Trade Plan

Berlin, Jan. 4 (AP)—German warplanes bombed the big west coast port of Bristol during the night in a heavy assault which started fires visible more than 100 miles away, informed sources reported today.

The high command said "numerous bombs" were dropped on Bristol, causing "explosions and conflagrations visible from afar."

British raiders, the high command said, made assaults on four places in north Germany in the night, dropping incendiary bombs "on exclusively residential sections, in which a number of fires occurred. Military and war economy damage was negligible."

Two British planes were reported shot down and one German plane failed to return.

Good weather was said to have aided the warplanes attacking Bristol and they dropped bombs of all sizes on the harbor and city, informed quarters reported. A heavy series of explosions was said to have followed bomb hits in the southeastern part of the port.

Lighter attacks were reported directed against several south coast English ports, including Southampton, Weymouth and Lymington. German planes also aimed a number of British harbor approaches, informed sources declared.

These sources said British naval units attempted to shell Stavanger, southern Norwegian port, the night of Jan. 2-3, but all of the shells missed their marks and the units were forced to turn back.

Augmenting the official high command communique, authoritative sources said British bombs killed three civilians in air raids on the Reich last night.

These sources said the extent of the raid on the town, which was not identified immediately, was not yet known.

They said there were few British flights over Germany during the night.

Authoritative quarters in Britain reported that RAF bombers had attacked Bremen for the third night in a row.

Foreign Trade Approved

Rome, Jan. 4 (AP)—The Fascist cabinet, meeting today under the chairmanship of Premier Mussolini, announced approval of a plan for more efficient control of Italy's foreign trade, both imports and exports.

Details of the proposed law were withheld.

The cabinet approved a law doubling pensions for war widows and orphans and authorized enlistment of a large number of war veterans in the air service.

Plans for a 45-mile canal from Milan through Cremona to the Po river, with construction to start as soon as "Fascist Italy has attained its unflinching victory," also were sanctioned. The canal would provide cheaper transportation of Italian coal and other raw materials for the 230 miles from Venice to Milan's industrial region, the cabinet said.

Another proposed law approved by the cabinet provides for motor buses and trucks in Italy to be painted a dull gray, presumably wartime camouflage.

The cabinet will meet again next Tuesday to consider the government's final budget.

Britain's Answer to Nazi Sea Menace Is Fleet of Speedy, New 'Corvettes'

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—A fleet of fast new "corvettes," which look like streamlined, supercharged U. S. coast guard cutters, is Britain's latest answer to the German submarine menace, it was disclosed today.

The new ships, which an informed source said are being built in large numbers in both Britain and Canada, already are credited with a number of successes against undersea commerce raiders.

Shallow-bottomed, speedy, bristling with guns and depth charges, the "corvettes" were designed to meet the need for small craft which could be built quickly at low cost.

Production is "in full swing," it was said, and the vessels are rapidly taking over much of the merchant convoy work which converted trawlers tried to assume at the

British Say Nazis Will Trick Eire

Sources Blame Germany for Irish Bombings, Say Nazis Trying to Pick Fight

Answer Is Ready

Berlin Will Have Its Answer to Protest by Ireland

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—British sources, flatly blaming Germany for recent bombings of Ireland (Eire) suggested today the Nazis were trying to force that neutral republic into the war as a British ally with the hope of seizing Irish bases as jumping off spots for an invasion of England.

Occupation of Ireland also would give the Germans "ideal" naval and air bases to continue their assaults on British sea commerce, these sources said.

Irish bases would increase Germany's chance for a successful invasion "immeasurably," it was said, since the British would be forced to meet attacks from both the east and west.

(A German spokesman in Berlin said in reference to the bombing of Ireland that "those bombs are English or they are imaginary. Our fliers are not and have not been sent to Ireland. * * *")

British war resources would be strained further should Ireland enter the conflict, these sources commented, because the little republic is woefully deficient in anti-aircraft guns, artillery and ammunition.

She likewise has relatively few planes which could cope with the Luftwaffe, they said, and Britain's force would have to send aircraft to her assistance, thereby weakening her home defenses.

Several weeks ago Ireland blocked her main highways as one of numerous precautions against invasion, it was recalled, but she has little means of fighting off an invasion attempt.

Nature of Reply Uncertain

Berlin, Jan. 4 (AP)—If and when the Irish charge d'affaires appears to protest the Dublin bombing, Germany will have a "clear and unmistakable answer" ready, authorized sources declared today.

(The Irish government instructed its charge d'affaires in Berlin yesterday to make an "energetic protest" to the German government with reference to the recent series of air bomb attacks on neutral Ireland.)

They declined to divulge the nature of the reply, but said the facts had been carefully investigated.

A Berlin spokesman earlier said the bombs either were "English or they are imaginary. Our fliers are not and have not been sent to Ireland. * * *"

Special Precautions

Mexico City, Jan. 4 (AP)—The ministry of national defense said today that military commanders in Tamaulipas, Coahuila, San Luis Potosi, Yucatan and Guerrero states have been ordered to take special precautions against possible disorders in connection with political conflicts. Clashes with a number of casualties already have occurred, it was said. In some communities two mayors and two city councils have taken office, each faction insisting it was the one elected.

Earth Tremor Reported

Ossipee, N. H., Jan. 4 (AP)—A slight earth tremor was felt shortly after 6 a. m. today in this region which was the epicenter of two earthquakes last month. No damage was reported. The Rev. James J. Devlin, S. J., seismologist at Weston College, said his instruments recorded a "mild shock" at 6:10:42 a. m. and that the disturbance probably was not felt anywhere but in the Ossipee region.

New Gun Announced

London, Jan. 4 (AP)—A machine-gun that fires backward from a mount beneath the nose of a plane was said today to be the RAF's newest weapon. The new Vickers gun, aimed and operated by the navigator through a series of mirrors, was described as tending to beat off attackers who came up from below and behind the plane.

New Lease-Lend Plan Assured, Congress Leaders Say, but See Long Debate Over Proposal

Cold Wave Is Due To Hit Atlantic Region Tonight

(By The Associated Press)

A cold wave, brewed in Alaska and northwestern Canada, engulfed most of the north central states today and moved toward the south and east at a fast clip.

With the drop in temperatures came snow and strong winds. Early today the cold front had moved eastward through Indiana and southward into Missouri and Kansas.

The weather bureau at Chicago predicted that the cold wave would reach the Atlantic seaboard late tonight and that it would be felt as far south as the Gulf coast. Sub-zero temperatures prevailed throughout North Dakota, and Minnesota, in most of South Dakota and in parts of Utah, Wyoming, Idaho and Wisconsin. The mercury was dropping rapidly toward the zero mark in northern Nebraska and Iowa.

A blinding snowstorm of short duration struck Chicago and northern Illinois last night. The wind driven flakes brought a virtual blackout to Chicago's loop. Street lights, electric signs, and auto lights were invisible from a distance of a hundred yards.

A 41 mile wind was reported at Rapid City, S. D. Gusts attained a velocity of from 35 to 40 miles an hour in Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Illinois and eastern Nebraska.

Defendant Balks, But Judge Orders Alimony Payment

Dominick Sorrentino of Cottekill, an employee of the New York water works, told Justice Schirch he did not want to go to jail for contempt of court for failure to pay counsel fees and alimony, nor does he care to lose his $11,000 life's savings which he had invested in property upon which he must make payments on a mortgage.

Justice Schirch told Sorrentino that unless he paid the counsel fees and alimony he would go to jail but he gave him a month to make reduced payments. Some time ago the supreme court directed the Cottekill resident to pay $100 counsel fees to Guido J. Napoletano, counsel for Mrs. Sorrentino in a separation action, and also to pay Mrs. Sorrentino $20 a week for her support and that of the children.

He has failed to pay the counsel fees and is also behind on the payments to his wife. He has been paying but $15 a week to his family in contempt of the court order.

Mr. Napoletano asked the court to require payment of the counsel fees and also make regular payments to the wife, who lives in Brooklyn.

Sorrentino said he had been making smaller payments to his family because of the need of money to meet obligations on a mortgage and argued that he could not lose his life's savings.

Other Awards

Other awards were: Jessie Doty Carey, about an acre with improvements. A value of $6,875 was claimed by claimant and the city placed a value of $10,000 on the property.

Roosevelt Will Show Balance President Will Equalize Tax Revenues and 'Normal Expenses,' but Nine Billion Deficit Still Shows

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—President Roosevelt, it was reported authoritatively today, will show a balance between tax revenues and "normal expenses" of the government in his forthcoming budget.

The budget, to be submitted to congress next week, will be for the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

However, the "normal expenses"—those exclusive of emergency defense costs—will amount to about $8,000,000,000 out of a total budget of approximately $17,000,000,000, it was reported, indicating a deficit of nearly $9,000,000,000.

The President announced weeks ago that he would pare non-defense items in an effort to balance the "ordinary" budget, and he was reported to have succeeded.

The "ordinary budget," it was said, will include all non-defense costs, expected to total roughly $7,000,000,000 plus $1,000,000,000 or more of defense expenditures, that probably would have been incurred if there were no emergency program.

The total defense budget, it was learned, will be about $10,000,000,000, of which approximately $9,000,000,000 will be labeled as emergency costs, to be financed through both new taxes and borrowing.

Due to better business and several new taxes levied last year, federal revenues were estimated for the coming fiscal year (beginning next July 1) at a little over $8,000,000,000 — a $1,700,000,000 gain over expectations for the current year.

Commission Hands Japanese Reported In Total Awards Drafting American Citizens in Hawaii Asking $92,497.50

Fifteen Owners in Sullivan County Are Listed in Report Filed Friday by Section 11

In its first separate report members of Delaware Section, No. 11, commission, Messrs. John R. Brook of New York, Grover C. Lasher of Kingston and William P. Cooney of Sullivan county made awards totaling $92,497.50 to 15 claimants in Sullivan county. The report was filed Friday. One claimant agreed to acceptance of $2,800.

The largest award was to Raymond R. Roosa and Theresa Roosa, parcel 1601, where 134 acres of improved land was taken. The claimant testified to a value of $43,328 and the city testified to a value of $14,843 and the commissioners made an award of $23,565. Senator Charles W. Walton appeared for the claimants and New York City appeared by Henry R. Bright and Theodore R. Lee. The claimant was allowed $1,782.25 for counsel fees and $987 for disbursements and expenses.

The second largest award was for parcel 1570, a 10 acres taking with improvements where Henry Tillison was awarded $12,210. He claimed a value of $21,340 and the city's valuation was $8,100. Senator Charles W. Walton appeared for the claimant and Henry R. Bright and Theodore R. Lee for the city. An allowance of $6,105.50 was made for counsel fees and $607 for expenses and disbursements.

The League said, he declared, that Japan had completed a census of 89,500 Japanese in Hawaii and now was engaged in conscripting Japanese-Americans between 21 and 36 years of age both in Hawaii and on the west coast.

The League claimed, he added, that 50,000 Americans of Japanese ancestry already were undergoing military training, that 3,800 had been placed in islands under Japanese mandate within striking range of Hawaii, and that 12,000 of military age were in Pacific coast states.

Gillette said that officials of the Sino-Korean Peoples League had written him from Los Angeles that consulates of the Japanese government on the Pacific coast and in Hawaii were being used for the alleged conscription.

House Opens Session With Prayer for Democracy

As the seventy-seventh congress of the United States opened, members of the house of representatives bowed in a prayer for democracy, voiced by the chaplain, the Rev. James Shera Montgomery. Note steel girders overhead, recently installed to reinforce roof of the chamber pending repairs.

Expenses Are Discussed

The question of how the heavy expenditures are to be met was being much discussed. Barkley said that tax increases, expected to be sought by the administration this session, should make it possible for the government not only to balance its "regular" budget—exclusive of defense items—but also to meet some defense costs.

In other quarters, fiscal experts predicted the President's budget report to congress next week would show a "balance" between income and "normal" expenses for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1941 and would include in "normal" expenses $1,000,000,000 for army and navy costs which would have been incurred even in normal times.

Senator Wheeler, as chairman of the interstate commerce committee, created a subcommittee headed by himself to ferret out foreign influences "that may be delaying or obstructing national defense." An allocation of $100,000 will be asked for the inquiry.

Chairman Dies (D., Tex.) of the House committee on un-American activities announced he would ask Monday that his committee be continued for two years and given $1,000,000 to pursue its work.

Wheeler Announces He Will Devote Almost 'Entire Time' as One Opposed Message Awaited

President Will Outline Proposal Monday in Congress

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—Ultimate approval of President Roosevelt's lease-lend plan for aiding the British was predicted by Democratic leaders of Congress today, but they conceded that it would have to stand the test of "lengthy debate."

Providing for the lease and loan of war equipment to Britain, with repayment in kind or in raw materials such as rubber upon conclusion of hostilities, the proposal already has become the foremost issue of the day-old 77th Congress and critics of administration foreign policy asserted that it would be stoutly opposed.

Among these, Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.) announced he would devote almost his "entire time" to fighting the plan. Senators La Follette (Prog., Wis.) and Nye (R., N. D.) expressed opposition to giving the President wide authority to effect this type of assistance to Britain and administration chiefs, on the other hand, expressed confidence in eventual acceptance of the proposal by Congress.

A closer drawing of the lines of the controversy appeared, however, to await Mr. Roosevelt's presentation of his annual message on Monday and the introduction of legislation embodying the plan.

The Chief Executive planned to work on the message over the week-end. Indications were that it would deal chiefly with the paramount problems of foreign policy, including pressing questions of aid to Britain, in the same vein as his defense broadcast of last Sunday night.

Mr. Roosevelt already has said that legislation to carry out the lease-lend plan would have to be fairly general in its provisions since all the things to be done could not be anticipated in writing the law. To this Senator Majority Leader Barkley added that the President would ask for broad and unlimited powers to make the plan effective.

House, Senate in Recess

Following initial organization sessions yesterday both House and Senate were in recess today, but meetings of Democratic and Republican caucuses were called for the purpose of perfecting the Senate's party machinery.

It was authoritatively forecast that within 10 days the army would ask Congress for approximately $4,000,000,000 more to expand and speed up the armament program. Among the funds to be asked, it was indicated, will be some to equip and garrison Atlantic bases being developed on sites acquired from the British.

The $4,000,000,000 figure represented an upward revision of $1,000,000,000 in the army's estimates of its needs for additional money as unofficially reported a few days ago. The new funds, if and when granted, will go for assembling 3,600 bombers annually from parts manufactured chiefly in automobile factories and for various other purposes, including new munitions plants and so-called "critical" equipment to round out supplies for a force of 2,000,000 men.

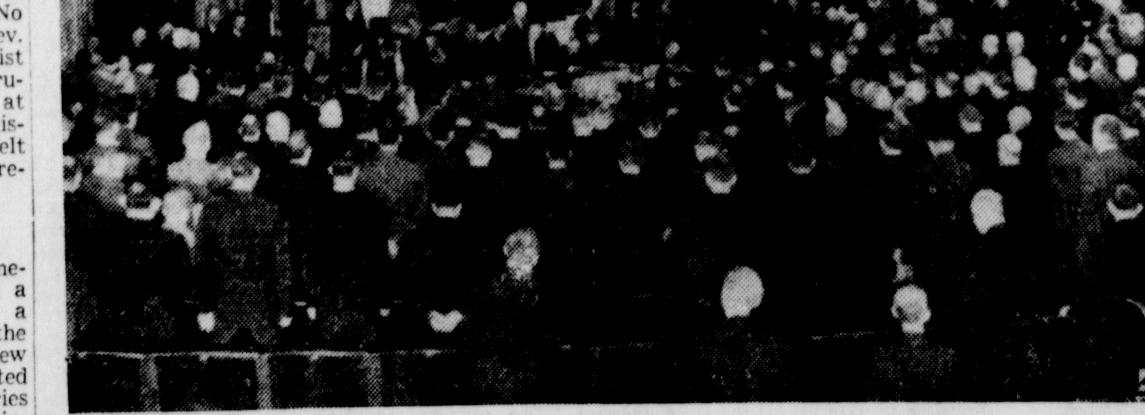

The question of how the heavy expenditures are to be met was being much discussed. Barkley said that tax increases, expected to be sought by the administration this session, should make it possible for the government not only to balance its "regular" budget—exclusive of defense items—but also to meet some defense costs.

Production of Machine Tools Is Doubled Cleveland (AP)—The production of machine tools is running at the record rate of $40,000,000 a month and further expansion of this defense industry is under way. A year ago machine tool production was averaging about $20,000,000 a month. Payrolls have been growing. Tell Berna, general manager of the National Machine Tool Builders' Association, estimates "very close to 100,000" men now have jobs in the industry. The "normal" number is about 40,000. The previous peak, in 1919, about 55,000. The industry which makes the machines that make the machines of peace and war production, has been coming ahead since the outbreak of the war, in September, 1939.

By the start of that year, however, direct paying of tools by the government had begun to assume an important position. While it slackened off in the spring of this year, the opening of the government's new fiscal period in July provided for funds for renewed buying at the fastest rate in the records of the industry. But, says Berna: "The expansion of the productive capacity of the industry which began in September, 1939, is a continuing process and we are still engaged in it."

Copper Shortage Seen in Response To Bids by Navy
The shortage in copper in the domestic market, both for defense and ordinary needs, was emphasized yesterday when the Navy sought to buy 3,550,000 pounds, but received bids but for 2,100,000 pounds. None of the bids overlapped so that there was no potential supplier for the remaining 1,450,000 pounds. None of the principal domestic producing companies were among the bidders. The Government's Metal Reserve Co. recently purchased 100,000 tons of Latin American copper, delivery on which is to start in March. Some trade quarters believe that defense needs may force use of that metal sooner than had been anticipated. Major domestic producers have been in sold out positions for some time and there has been in force a policy of allocation on a month to month basis at a price of 12 cents a pound delivered Connecticut Valley.

Wall Street Journal says that a survey shows that the bulk of big blocks of stock recently offered for sale in the market, for account of British Government, have been taken by individual buyers, with numerous 25 and 50-share lots taken by small investors.

Several consumers of semi-finished steel products reported yesterday that they had been notified that allocation of some types of steel on the defense-first basis had been restored to by steel makers. Orders for steel for defense contracts, or for export to Great Britain will be filled promptly, but supplies for regular civilian needs will have to wait their turn.

Barron's index of the physical volume of business dropped to 94.6 per cent of normal for the week ended December 28, from 95.4 in the preceding seven days. Carloadings for the same week, with Christmas a factor, dropped more than seasonally, total for the week being 545,307 cars, a decrease of 152,448 from the preceding week.

Stocks moved decidedly upward Friday, with volume of 506,040 shares somewhat below that of Thursday. In early session, bid prices improved through the session and closed at the best levels of the day, with much the heaviest trading in the last hour. The Dow-Jones industrials average made the good gain of 1.44 points for the day, to close at 132.01. Ralls were up .33 point, their best gain in some time, to close at 28.36 and the utility average moved ahead 10 point, to 19.96.

The list of 15 most active stock was led by Commonwealth and Southern, which dropped 1/16 in turnover of 16,300 shares, but all others on the list showed gains for the day. They included U. S. Steel, up 2 1/2, General Motors, up 1/2, Chrysler, with the same gain, Bethlehem Steel up 2 1/2, and Standard of New Jersey, up 1 1/2.

Savings and Loan Holds Elections

Flanagan Reports Year Was Prosperous; Directors Are Re-elected

The Savings & Loan Association of Kingston marked down 1940 as one of the best years in the association's 48 years of activity in Kingston.

E. Frank Flanagan, concluding his eighth year as president of the association (since March, 1939, he has devoted his full time to the work as executive president), reported at the annual meeting of the officers and directors held January 3, that the year has been a very prosperous one, with more loans made than in any other year, more new money taken in and more money loaned for new construction.

The report showed assets of $1,451,747.53 at the close of business on December 31, 1940, a nice increase over 1939. There were 1,800 investors (shareholders) at the close of the year, which also is a record figure.

During 1940 the association loaned a total of $357,109.72 to 172 persons, for construction of new homes, purchase of existing homes, repairs and modernization and miscellaneous purposes. This makes a total of 637 being helped by the association to become home owners.

Loans in force on December 31 totaled $1,263,648.60, on property conservatively valued at $2,225,000. Dividends amounting to $38,128.54 were paid during the year, four per cent being paid on installment shares and three per cent on prepaid shares. So far 96 dividends have been paid. Eight pieces of property were sold during the year, at a profit of $2,502.12 over their book value.

President Flanagan reports that the association has one of the best and most up-to-date accounting systems and especially praises Cashier Van Darrow and Clerk William Stall for their efficient and faithful work during the year.

Directors of the association, re-elected, are: Charles H. Buchholz, Arthur J. Burns, R. Frederick Chidsey, Charles B. Everett, E. F. Flanagan, William A. Frey, John B. Kearney, Chauncey M. Lane, Clarence S. Rowland, Jay W. Rifenbary, Arthur D. Ronder, S. D. Scudder, Jr., and Arthur H. Wicks.

Man Is Beheaded

Berlin, Jan. 4 (AP)—Georg Herzog, 56, of Strassburg, was beheaded today after conviction of spying for military secrets of the Reich. He was the first to be beheaded in 1941 for treason. There were 49 espionage beheadings last year.

Psychologist Defends And Praises Newspapers

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—American newspapers were described by a Columbia University psychologist today as impartial journals of world news, regardless of their political affiliations or the size of the cities in which they are published.

Dr. E. L. Thorndike, in an analysis of various American newspapers, also declared that "those who make newspapers apparently still in large measure consider their craft to be that of getting and presenting news, and not an apprenticeship for pictorial magazines, Hollywood or television."

"Apparently," he added, "those who buy newspapers still in large measure buy them not as a means of entertainment . . . but mainly for the conventional features of a newspaper of the last half-century."

His analysis was published in the Scientific Monthly.

"It is common to speak of the newspapers of today as purely commercial enterprises managed with an eye single to profits," the scientist declared. "The facts of the study suggest that for most of the press of the United States this is a slander."

Hotel, Buildings Burn at $250,000 Loss in New Britain

New Britain, Conn., Jan. 4 (AP)—Charred and blackened ruins were all that remained today of a hotel and four business buildings in downtown New Britain following the city's most spectacular fire in more than 30 years which, William J. Nobel said, caused a loss of $250,000.

So large was the throng attracted last night to the scene of the general alarm blaze that local units of the National Guard were mustered out to help police the area.

All the city's regular, volunteer and factory firemen and three companies from outside communities were summoned and succeeded in bringing the flames under control only after a nine-hour battle. At 3 a. m. Chief Nobel said that the fire was controlled and no longer a menace, although the Hotel Clifton, last of the buildings to be destroyed, was still blazing.

There were no serious casualties, two firemen and one power company employee receiving emergency treatment for injuries or smoke poisoning.

The harbor at Cherbourg, France, completed by Napoleon III in 1857, was 74 years in construction.

DECISION AND ACTION

The people of the United States are not having any trouble making up their minds about the war in Europe. The trouble lies in the fact that when the minds are made up they so often disagree. They arrive at opposite conclusions.

Recently a member of the faculty of a university issued a statement in which he advocated isolation for this country. Within a few days a group of men from the same institution publicly stated their "unconditional opposition to his stand." They concluded: "We believe that America's interests will be best served by a policy of aid to Britain."

This sort of thing has happened again and again. A prominent citizen will publish an article, speak over the radio, or say in an interview that he strongly favors one course of action for the United States. Almost at once some one else of a similar degree of prominence comes forward to express vigorous opposition to such action. Free speech is the guaranteed right of all. In most cases, even opposing groups are agreed on one thing—protection of democracy.

If Americans are intelligent, as they believe themselves to be, they should realize that such pulling and hauling in all directions at once will get them nowhere. In the democratic process it must be possible to act. The majority chooses the course to be followed. Opponents of the majority may expound their own views and criticize, but they should not hamper in any way fulfillment of the public decision.

CHILLY COMMENCEMENT

Here is a matter that might be a good subject for a school debate, or even a college thesis. A high school teacher who has been in the business 42 years, and has seen a lot of youngsters come and go, makes this criticism:

"There is only one thing wrong with the present high school graduate," he says. "So much fuss is raised over his graduation that he is apt to become convinced that he knows everything."

The world soon takes that out of him in most cases. But it might be that a little systematic acceleration of the deflating process would orient the youth more quickly to the realities of a cold world. Suppose, for example, that instead of all the effusive, complimentary flub-dub usually connected with commencement, the youth, at the completion of his school course, were simply shoved out unceremoniously into the cold world. It might be done through a big tube, like one of those enclosed fire escapes in which the escaper simply sits and slides. And the exit might shoot him out unexpectedly into a deep pool of ice water.

Then when he got dried off and warmed up, the graduate might be ready to start life without conceit or illusion.

HISTORY'S BIG YEAR

If it's any consolation to the people who lived and suffered through the agonies of 1940 in Europe, Asia and Africa, their experiences have provided historians with the "most eventful year recorded in all warfare." Individual countries may have had just as stirring and fateful years, but there has been no similar period of time in which so many lands have seen so many and such swift changes together.

If, last January, anyone had foretold the events which affected Russia and Finland, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France, Greece, Italy, Great Britain, India, China, Siam, North Africa, he would have been regarded as crazy. In fact, many people who have followed it all by radio and newspaper have a feeling that it can't all be true.

People will continue to study man's history before 1940, partly hoping to find the true causes of the catastrophe of that year. But most of what preceded will seem tame and slow when they get into the chronicles of the dizzy last year of the fourth decade of the twentieth century. There is widespread, profound hope that the year at hand, in which there are bound to be momentous events, will be less confusing and paralyzing and will see much accomplished toward the restoration of human decency and order.

THE SUPPLY LINE

The time is coming once more, if it is not actually here, when the big need of this country will be a continuous production line of ships, to ferry food and materials to England. Later on, with good luck, we might use most of them to perform a similar service for Europe generally, in peaceful restoration.

At present, we can't see very far ahead. Perhaps nobody can, not even Hitler. We are doing well if we can see one important thing at a time clearly and agree about it among ourselves, and act together on our conviction. But we have to try to see two things at once—the step that is now possible, and the step to take after that. We must prepare for the second while acting on the first.

So it's rushing supplies to England now, as our main job, and meanwhile getting ready to bridge the Atlantic with new ships before the present bridge is sunk.

EXPORT TROUBLE

The problem of what to do with this country's exportable farm products will be serious for a while, at least, although the situation is expected to improve next year. In November of 1940 only 9 per cent of American exports were farm products. In November 1939 the figure was 22 per cent.

The demand for uniforms here is helping cotton by increasing domestic consumption of that product. The home market for tobacco and wheat cannot be stepped up easily to compensate for loss of European buyers.

Another evidence of how England keeps the home fires burning is an 18-year-old girl wielding a sledge in a blacksmith shop.

The most troublesome item in some people's budgets is "miscellaneous."

Why anybody should want to own and run this crazy world is a mystery.

No matter what's coming now, we're glad last year's over.

We must win our war on the assembly line.

PREVENTION OF MIGRAINE

When an individual has frequent attacks of one-sided headache, nausea, and vomits green bile, the liver and gall bladder are naturally blamed for the symptoms. That the trouble is higher up, that is, in the brain and nervous system, is the opinion of Dr. Walter Alvarez, Mayo Clinic.

Dr. Alvarez has done much research work on the digestive system and points out that it is impulses from the brain and nervous system that cause the small intestine to move its contents upwards instead of downwards and so green bile is pushed up through the stomach and vomited. In investigating the cause and causes of migraine, the name given to these symptoms, most physicians have investigated the stomach, liver, gall bladder and intestine by means of test meals, X-rays, and the eating of various foods. From long experience with these cases, Dr. Alvarez states that physicians should not go lower than the neck in seeking the cause. Time should be taken to examine the patient as an individual because it is his very personality or individuality that causes him to have migraine.

Most persons with migraine are overactive mentally, physically and emotionally. They are often highly conscientious, restless persons who are always overworking or worrying or taking life too seriously. They commonly suffer with sleeplessness. Usually they are well above average in intelligence, ability, and drive, but often need stability and self discipline.

The prevention of attacks, then, means that the physician must advise the patient that overactivity (mental and physical), worry or emotional disturbances, really bring on attacks. That more frequent rests, acquiring more calmness of mind, developing a more hopeful attitude toward life will prevent the tired or upset brain sending down the impulses that bring on the symptoms.

In treating the attack itself Dr. Alvarez advises that treatment should be given "the minute the patient thinks the headache is coming." The treatment advised is the hypodermic injection of ergotamine tartrate (gynergen) or breathing in 100 per cent oxygen for one or two hours.

The thought then is that if these attacks are to be prevented, more rest, more relaxation, less prolonged hard mental and physical work are necessary.

"ARSENAL OF DEMOCRACY" WINGS TOWARD VICTORY By Bressler

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—(Second) installment of a two-part letter to Vice President-elect Henry Agard Wallace, setting forth some facts about his new job as V.P. and president-to-be of the Senate:

In spite of all I said in the first part of this letter, Mr. Vice President-elect of the United States, don't think that your job is so pious as some of the musical comedy writers have made it appear.

One of your predecessors once wrote an article entitled "The Vice President—Fifth Wheel of the Government." And even if that funny fellow, John Nance Garner, did paraphrase it to read "The spare tire of the government," there's a lot of evidence that the spare tire had on occasion served pretty well.

The record shows that nine of the 32 men who have held your job have become presidents, including a few gentlemen you may have heard of before: John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt and Calvin Coolidge. That means a V.P. has more than a one-to-four chance of becoming Mr. Big himself and at least one chance in eight of going down in the history books in capital letters.

May Be "Assistant President"

What's more, if there is any truth in the talk going around Washington that President Roosevelt plans to make you a sort of "assistant president" you don't need to worry about senators, the President and the public making you the Throbbottom of the third tier.

The unofficial title of "assistant president" is nothing new. It is true that for 140 years after Adams no vice-president ever sat in the cabinet, but long before President Wilson's absence in Paris brought Thomas R. Marshall into the cabinet, vice-presidents had had the respect of their chief executives and worked closely with them.

The newspapers of President McKinley's day first applied the title of "Assistant President" to George A. Hobart, McKinley's first-term V.P., who died in office; but President Harding was the first executive to use the phrase officially. He announced before his inauguration that he intended "to create the office of Assistant president" and bring Mr. Coolidge into the cabinet.

Since then Vice Presidents Curtis, Dawes and Garner have sat in the cabinet often enough to keep the precedent alive and make their post something more than that of mere chair-warmer on the Senate dais.

You Can Eat At Home

As a matter of fact, Mr. V.P., you can eat that the duties and obligations of your new job have changed a lot in recent years. Right up until Coolidge held it, it was by fixed tradition the post of the government's official "diner-out."

Mr. Coolidge didn't take much to dining out and tried to abolish the tradition. Since he wasn't exactly a lion in the dining salons, he got enough cooperation from Washington hostesses to crack the custom, and Garner, sometimes referred to as "the Cactus," was able to shatter it completely. You can probably get by without even dining out on the maid's night out.

Although your job officially is pretty much one of waiting around in case something happens to the President and of presiding over the Senate over which you have no real authority, you really can make a whole lot of it if you want to.

When you are inaugurated, an hour or so before the President, you can even make your inaugural speech a biting harangue to the Senate if you want to. "Hell 'n' Maria" Dawes did just that and although it almost knocked some of the senators right out of their seats, they took it and "Charley" Dawes got a lot more space in the history books than usually is accorded vice presidents.

There is really no native American pheasant, although the ruffed grouse is often referred to in many parts of the country as a "pheasant." This "native pheasant" is the same bird that is sometimes known as a "partridge" in most of the northern states. Our native birds that resemble the pheasant are mostly grouse. Only members of the ringneck variety of pheasants, of which there are about 17 species, have been introduced into this country with any wide success.

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

"SHELLEY," by Newman Ivey White.

It is necessary to know the physical proportions and qualities of Dr. Newman Ivey White's "Shelley" to understand the book. These are impressive—there are two volumes containing 1100 pages of text, 280 pages of notes, around 100 pages of appendices, and one of the best indexes to be found in recent books, 150 pages long.

Then it is necessary to know that Dr. White's book is the product of 25 years' research, and a passion to know all about Shelley which began in the author's college days and has not abated since. This passion has not been sublimated into a series of critical orgies, but has remained upon a logical and factual plane most of the time. Shelley, since his emergence as a poet, has been one of literature's enigmas, a kind of glorified and often glorious intellectual maze. Dr. White wanted to reach the center of the maze and now he probably has. At what cost of labor!

It is not that he has explained how this humorless, perhaps even slightly insane, man was able to write verse that never will die. This central virtue of Shelley cannot be explained. But by the intelligent use of every device known to scientific research Dr. White has at last put this central virtue squarely into its setting. We know now nearly everything that Shelley did and for the most part we are able to see why he did it and how. Even his ridiculous attempt to persuade the Irish not to have fun, not laugh or drink or waste their time, but to make a revolution by weight of virtue—even this seems understandable in the light of Dr. White's work.

There is not a tenth the space necessary to explain the realignments and the new facts in "Shelley," even if I were Shelley scholar enough to value them properly. There is, for example, much new material on Shelley's various women. There is also an explanation of some of Shelley's astounding emotional flights—they were, in effect, enactments of roles Shelley took from things he read. Dr. White believes, The Hogg episodes (Hogg being the man who made love to Shelley's wives in turn) is understandable as the author tells it. Indeed, everything seems clear enough, barring the one thing outside Dr. White's province, and that is how such a fellow could write such verse.

United States Is Now Preparing Under Roosevelt to Finance War, Supply Equipment for Great Britain
By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 4.—America may not yet have become aware of it, but the United States government under the leadership of President Roosevelt is getting ready to finance the war and provide all necessary equipment and materials for Britain.

Becoming the "arsenal of democracy" means that the United States will be transformed into a huge munitions factory, a granary, and a shipbuilding yard of stupendous proportions. Nothing like it—not even during the first World War—has ever been planned. It will cost billions as yet uncalculated.

But—and here's the sanction for it all—the President believes this is the way to keep the war from our shores and to prevent the shedding of a single drop of American blood. He feels confident he has back of him a united public opinion.

Neutrality as previously known has, of course, been discarded. The session of Congress which has just convened will dispose of the last technicalities of neutrality and begin furnishing materials and equipment to Britain in vast quantities.

The latest announcement concerns a shipbuilding program of $350,000,000. It is Mr. Roosevelt's answer to the submarine menace which is slowly diminishing the tonnage of Britain. Very soon America will be able to put cargo ships into the water faster than they are being sunk, but Britain, in the meantime, has ample reserve to keep her life lines going. By diverting ships now flying the British flag from the Pacific trade and putting American ships at work there, the tonnage in the North Atlantic will be increased for Britain.

The loan-or-lease plan to send planes, tanks, guns, bombs and even food, if necessary, is being drafted. There seems no question but that after a brief debate it will be adopted. The Republic is ready to cooperate with the president on war issues. The atmosphere of unity is reminiscent of that which prevailed in Congress in 1917 and 1918.

So far as funds are concerned, the treasury will be expected to finance all war orders before long so that the weapons of war will be America's property, loaned like fire hose to the other democracies.

There is no way of knowing when France will be ready to re-enter the war on the side of Britain—if not from continental Europe, then perhaps from Africa. America will become the reservoir of supply for France or any other nation which joins the fold. The prospect that Russia may require some assistance from American factories is envisaged as a possibility. The cry that America go on a "war basis" is being day now. The executive order abolishing the eight-hour day for civilian employees engaged in constructing the new bases in the Atlantic is a symptom of what may be expected on those projects where haste becomes necessary.

What is needed also is some one who has the confidence of industry to go around the country and "pep" up the management and labor executives so that they will get the spirit of the new speed-up in Washington. Maybe the President will find the right man for that. For he is certainly moving faster nowadays on all fronts than he did before he left for his vacation in December.

The team was managed by City Judge William D. Brinnier, while the coach was Physical Director L. C. Godfrey. The players were Gordon A. Craig, Lester Elmerdorf, Art Davis, Harris Brown and Fred Wazel.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

Formal Evening Dress Proper for Men at Sunday Evening Wedding, Says Emily Post.

Tails in Themselves Not Improper on Sunday But Few Formal Events Take Place on That Day.

The fact that the wedding is taking place on a Sunday evening has rather confused the issue of clothes in the following letter: "At a big evening wedding on a Sunday, would it not be unsuitable for the men to wear tail coats, because on Sunday formal clothes are never seen? Sunday weddings are the exception to the rule in this community, but we have to have ours on Sunday, and we want to have it in the evening, at home."

Since tails are formal evening dress, and since nothing could be more formal than the wedding ceremony, the men in the wedding should in my opinion wear full evening dress. It is true that there are very few times when tails are worn on a Sunday evening but that is not because evening dress in itself is improper but rather because very few events that can be rated as formal take place on a Sunday evening.

A Restaurant Complication

Dear Mrs. Post: Let's suppose I am lunching with a man friend in a restaurant and while we are waiting for our lunch, along come two women friends of mine who are unknown to my companion. They stand and talk a minute; he stands to meet them. If they are invited to join us, who should give the invitation—my companion, or should I? I think he is the one because he is taking me to lunch whereas he maintains that in such a situation it is up to me, since he didn't know if I cared enough about these particular friends to want to have them join us.

Answer: You certainly could not invite two of your own women friends to lunch with him! A man who has invited a woman to lunch with him can hardly be expected to be delighted to find that he has unavoidably become host to three! Neither should he, on the other hand, have been made to feel it necessary to ask them to join you. If he did invite them to join you, he would undoubtedly have felt obliged to pay their checks. Even had they offered to pay their own, many men would have felt embarrassed to let them. Had your two friends been a man and girl, and moreover his friends as well as yours, that might have been different, provided your host is just a friend and not a beau and the other pair are just friends too.

The Wedding March

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there any music appropriate for the wedding procession other than Lohengrin's march? I think it must be difficult to walk to. Answer: You may choose whatever else you like better than the Lohengrin march, provided of course it is suitable for a wedding. You certainly couldn't use a military march! The only reason the Lohengrin march is played so much is that to most brides it has all their lives been inseparable from their dream pictures of weddings.

"Don't Get Caught With Your Battery Down."

Joe—What's become of the Hiker's Club?
Jim—Oh, it disbanded. It was getting too hard to persuade passing motorists to pick us up and give us a lift.

The radio is a fine thing but when on the highway do not let it distract your mind from immediate fundamentals essential to your personal safety. Keep your mind on your driving.

Automobile Salesman (desperately)—But madam, if you take this car we will put your initials on it free.

Mrs. Saver—But my husband says it's not the initial cost that counts, but the upkeep.

Wasn't There Going To Be A Campaign Put On Against Glaring Headlights? Whatever happened to it?

Mariam—Mabel says she's wildly in love with her new car.

Traffic Officer (putting away book)—Well, don't let it happen again!

The trouble with a lot of motor car drivers nowadays is that they don't believe that they are poor drivers unless told so by a hospital doctor.

Father (to young son sucking his thumb)—Hey, kid, don't be late that thumb off. You may need it when you get old enough to travel.

Sam—How's your wife getting along with her driving?
Jim—She took a turn for the worse last week.

With 30 million of the world's 45 million motor cars, Uncle Sam must be kept pretty busy keeping down the accelerator.

Friend—So you fined Miss Sweetie $5 for speeding. Is she appealing?

Magistrate—Oh, very. But we could not let that affect our decision, you know.

I Think Thee

I think thee for this day, Oh Lord, and for each hour
That thou hath filled with sun or gentle shower.
I think thee for the bluebird's song I heard at dawn;
And for the yellow dandelions that trim my lawn.

Mrs. Smith—What does your husband like best for breakfast?
Mrs. Jones—Oh, anything I don't happen to have in the house.

Think of This

Let us all when we commence to slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word may be to those who little know.
Remember curses frequently like chickens roost at home.
Don't speak of others' faults until you've tried to see your own.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Jan. 3—Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lasher entertained a party of friends at the home on New Year's day.

About 70 members of a ski club in New York came to Woodstock arriving here at about 11 o'clock New Year's eve. However, as there was no snow, the skiing was impossible, and they were warned of this before leaving New York. The trip to Woodstock was thoroughly enjoyed by the club. The party would have numbered from 85 to 100 if snow had been on the ski trails.

The cast of the Alfred DeLaigre play, which is to open at the Belasco Theatre on January 14, is now complete. It is entitled "Mr. and Mrs. North," and includes Don Haggerty, who was seen in the Maverick productions here last summer. Both Mr. Haggerty and Mr. DeLaigre are well known in Woodstock.

The Lydian Society of the Reformed Church will meet at the parsonage Wednesday, January 8, at 2:30 o'clock.

On Thursday, January 9, the Reformed Church will hold its annual congregational meeting in the Church. There will be a covered dish supper, beginning at 5:30 o'clock for the members of the church and the regular business meeting will follow in the auditorium. There will be games for the children.

Bruce Herrick is ill at his home. The Reformed Church Missionary Society will hold its January 23 meeting at the parsonage, Thursday, January 23, at 2:30 p.m.

YESTERDAY: David's Aunt Julia has left him all she had to leave, which is a bankrupt inn. But she also suggested that he propose once more to Polly, and now David and Polly are exploring around the inn, and David is plotting ways to bring Polly to marriage. The only new thing in town, meanwhile, is the return of glamorous Margo Powers, the daughter of David's employer.

Chapter Four Aunt Susan

"WE might transplant some of these ferns down nearer the Inn," said Polly. "And another thing, David, I think it would be fun to work on those flower beds. I can see the remains of a lot of flowers of different sorts. Let's dig away the weeds and vines, and see if we can get the beds to blooming again."

"What for?" said David. "Just so the weeds and vines can get some exercise from growing back again?"

"No," said Polly. "How do you know but what if we get the flowers to blooming again, their color will attract attention? Maybe some man with money will see them, and decide to investigate."

"Okay, honey," said David. "We'll come out and work after dinner—now that the days are getting longer. But," he added, pulling Polly down beside him beneath a widespread oak, "let's forget all that for the moment. Are you ready to hear that 'steenth proposal of mine'?"

"Yes, David, but—"

"No buts!" David slipped his arm about Polly's waist, drew her closer to him. "When are you going to marry me, Polly?"

"Listen, David," Polly began, "we oughtn't to marry until we can do it without having to worry about other people, and—"

"All right, we'll stop worrying about other people," said David. "Anyway, Aunt Julia was the last of my relatives or relatives-in-law—or so far as I know she was—so there's nothing to keep you and me from living our own lives."

"There's my Aunt Susan," Polly reminded. "She's a dependent relative."

"Sure, I know," said David. "She's a good sort. You and she can move into the Wiley cottage on Elm Street with me. Maybe you can rent your aunt's house, now that a lot of people are coming to Ardendale to work in the lumber plant. It would give Aunt Susan a small income and keep her from feeling she was a burden."

He put his finger underneath Polly's chin, lifted her face and looked down into her eyes. "I'm sure we can manage, Sweetness," he said, his voice husky with longing. "I'm willing to take a chance. Won't you?"

Polly was thoughtful. She smiled. "Maybe we could do it," she said. "Only I hate for you to start helping support my relatives. You've always had an aunt or an uncle of your own on your hands, David, and—and it doesn't seem fair for you to take in my aunt."

"Polly, do you love me?"

"Yes, David. You're always asking me that."

"All right, then—what's the most important, your love for me and mine for you, or your Aunt Susan?"

"Silly!" said Polly. "Our love is the most important."

"Then it's settled. We get married. You and Aunt Susan can take over my cottage just as soon as you name the day."

Polly snuggled up to David. "Oh, darling," she said. "I do hope we're not doing the wrong thing."

"Certainly we're not," said David with emphasis. "Now, when do we marry? Tomorrow—Sunday—when?"

"Not tomorrow," said Polly. "I want a little more time to get ready."

"Saturday?" said David. "Next Saturday afternoon? I don't work on Saturday afternoons, you know."

"All right, David," Polly said very softly. "Next Saturday afternoon."

"Gosh!" said David. He gave Polly a hug. "At last! Just one more week and you'll be Mrs. David Wiley!"

Plans

"MRS. DAVID WILEY," said Polly, testing the sound of the words. "I hope Aunt Susan won't mind too much."

"Why should she?" said David. "It's our affair, isn't it? Besides, you always said she liked me."

"She does, David!" Polly said. "She likes you a lot."

"Then there's nothing to worry about."

"Only Aunt Susan is a little set in her ways," Polly went on. "I mean she's cooked all the meals, and run her own house so long, she'll want to cook for us, and run our house."

"Our house," David corrected. "Well, what if she does? I don't mind. Do you?"

"No," said Polly. "That is, I won't mind for a while. Not while I'm working at the tearoom."

"Which reminds me," said David, "that I don't like the idea of my wife working."

"That's silly, David," Polly told him. "Lots of young couples work now; they have to, in order to marry and establish a home. I don't mind working. And I think I should keep on with my job until you sort of get on your feet."

Swings at the Gallery on Thursday evening, January 2.

Postmaster Howard Bell and Adolph Heckerth left Friday morning for a vacation in Florida. John Lahey will go to Florida within a few days. He will be accompanied by his family. Also Chief Kerlew will leave New York Saturday night for Charleston, S. C.

The quarterly conference of the Methodist Church here will be held next Tuesday evening, January 7. Dr. Carroll will preside. Because of the illness of several of the members, the Epworth

"Okay, honey," said David. "I still don't like having you work—but maybe it would be best; anyway, until I get some debts paid up. Aunt Julia's long illness and death did cost a lot, and all she had was the Inn, bless her." He smiled and shrugged. "She probably thought she was doing me a great favor when she willed it to me, but—"

"Maybe it would be better to call the whole thing off," Polly interrupted, searching David's face. "I mean until you can feel more cheerful about everything; debts, and—"

"Call it off!" David exclaimed. "You must be crazy! I should say we won't call it off. We're getting married next Saturday—no matter what happens!"

"It's going to be an awful gamble," said Polly.

"Well, what of it?" David laughed. "All Wileys have been gamblers. Look at Uncle Fred—look at Freddy's Polly."

"I am," said Polly. "Some building, isn't it?"

They got up. They ran down the path.

"Maybe we could rent your cottage, too," Polly suggested, "and move out here—"

"Nothing doing," said David. "I'll take too much to heat this old ark—and it's too far from the lumber plant."

"Always the practical one!" Polly teased.

"Got to be," said David, "when I'm about to marry a girl who's romantic and sentimental—Oh, yes, Miss Polly Jenkins; where do we get married?"

"In Aunt Susan's cottage, of course," said Polly. "She's romantic and sentimental also—and she's always talking about how exciting it would be to have a wedding under her roof. She's even got an old wedding-veil that belonged to her mother. She wants me to wear it."

David caught Polly's arm, pulled her to him.

"Darling—you—in a wedding veil!" he said.

Polly laughed softly. "Now who's romantic and sentimental?" she said.

Boy Visitor

THEY got into the car, and drove back to Ardendale.

"I like to take you to a movie tonight," David said when they reached the cottage where Polly lived, "but I've got to read and study a book on forestry. Mr. Powers loaned it to me."

"That's all right," Polly said. "I've got plenty to do myself. I've got to tell Aunt Susan that there's to be a wedding under her roof at last—and then have a good look into my hope chest."

"Say, have you got one of those things?" said David.

"Of course I have," said Polly. "And I've had plenty of time to put things into it, too—while waiting for you to make up your mind to marry me."

David made a grab for her, but Polly eluded him and ran up the walk.

"Bye, darling!" she called back from the porch. "See you in church tomorrow!"

David threw her a kiss. He got back into the car, turned it around, and headed for his own home—the Wiley cottage, on Elm Street, wherein he had cared for a seemingly endless stream of relatives. He smiled to himself as he drove along, thinking that if all the pills he had administered to ailing relatives were piled into a heap, they'd make one of the Pyramids look like something a child had made with his building blocks.

But now it was all over. He was going to marry Polly. Polly was going to marry him. And they were going to combine forces in caring for Aunt Susan. Again he had the urge to burst into singing, and whistled instead.

He sped into Elm Street. He jammed on the brakes when he reached the cast-iron hitching post which a long-forgotten member of the Wiley family had placed in front of the house, and leaped out. He jerked open the front gate, and then stopped still in his tracks.

A small boy was sitting on the top step of the Wiley front porch. And beside him sat a dusty and battered suitcase.

David frowned. Probably another hitch-hiker. Darned if the country wasn't overrun with them. And no age limit, either—judging from this young fellow's size and years.

"Hey!" he called. "Who are you?"

The boy got up, and when he did David saw that he wore an iron brace on his right leg.

"I'm Peter Wiley," he said. "Are you Mister David Wiley?"

"Yes," said David. "I am."

"Say, that's swell!" the boy exclaimed. "We're cousins."

"Cousins?"

"Yes, Cousin David." The boy came limping down the walk, his hand outstretched. "Second cousins, or 'first cousins once removed,' the boy went on, smiling. "Dad said he never could remember which was which."

"What's your Dad's name?" David asked, as he shook hands. "Charlie Wiley," the boy replied. "Or Pennsylvania."

"Good Lord! David caught himself just before he actually spoke the two words. Charlie Wiley—a cousin he had not thought of in years, not since Charlie had written down to ask the loan of a hundred dollars to help buy a car. "That Yankee branch of the family never was any good," Uncle Fred had once said.

League meeting, which was to have been held Thursday evening at the home of Crystal Shultis, was postponed.

Among the striking innovations in modern packaging is one which has been traditionally put up in long-necked bottles. Now comes the newly designed glass buffet bowl containing tabasco-flavored catsup and chili sauce. There is no label on the bottle and the use of a spoon eliminates the need for the familiar "smack the bottle." Thus a useful and decorative article is created for table use.

Schirick Directs Tompkins to Pay Or Land in Jail

Roland Tompkins of the town of Wawarsing will either pay his former wife the sum of $3 a week for the support of her child even though he is not working steadily or he will be sent to jail for contempt of court.

Justice Harry E. Schirick, yesterday was not inclined to waver too much over Tompkins' question to the court as to "Who will take care of me?" but said if Tompkins did not pay $3 a week as directed by Justice Russell the court would take care of him in jail.

Tompkins came before the court at special term for failure to make payments as directed by Justice Russell. Lawrence Levine, appearing for the plaintiff, said payments had not been made as directed by the court and told Justice Schirick that Tompkins was far behind in payments.

Some time ago Justice Russell directed Tompkins to pay his former wife $4.50 a week when employed and $3 a week when he had no work.

Tompkins complained to the court that he had no work, was not in good health, and had acquired a second wife whom he had to support. The first marriage was annulled on application of Tompkins, who sought to cancel the first marriage on the grounds he was not of age when he first married. He was granted the annulment from Bernice Tompkins and directed to pay for the support of the child.

Justice Schirick questioned Tompkins as to why he had not paid as directed by Justice Russell and Tompkins said he had no work and was not well and had a wife now to support. He said he lived with his mother and his wife lived with her relatives.

If he paid his first wife as directed by the court he said he would have no money for himself and his present wife.

"Who is going to take care of me?" he asked the court.

"You will get board downstairs for yourself if you don't pay at least $3 a week for the support of that child," said Justice Schirick.

Tompkins said he could not get work and had no money to pay.
"Get a job on the town for one day a week and earn $3, that will make the payment," said Justice Schirick. Tompkins objected that he would not have anything left for himself.

"You will either pay or go to jail. I'll adjourn the case until February and give you a chance to get work and make the payments as directed," concluded the court.

Tompkins said he was unable to get work and pay the $3 directed, let alone pay any back sums. Justice Schirick said that if Tompkins went to jail welfare funds would take care of the child but Tompkins insisted he did not want to go to jail.

He took the month to attempt to get a job and make the payments and the case will come up again in February at special term.

U. S. Might Release Cargo Ships, More Destroyers to Britain to Aid Anglo Navy

Washington, Jan. 4 (AP)—The release of some cargo ships and more old destroyers to besieged Britain was reported under consideration by persons high in defense councils today as a means of spurring production under the navy's vast building program and President Roosevelt's new plan to construct 200 merchant vessels.

Speaking privately, defense authorities interested in this proposal argued that the early transfer of additional existing tonnage to meet the Nazi air and submarine threat to Britain's "life line" would impress upon the country the urgency of the need for maximum efforts in ship construction.

President Roosevelt has given no indication that he was considering such a move, however, and naval officers continued divided over the wisdom of placing additional destroyers under the British flag.

Fifty United States destroyers built in World War days were turned over to Britain last year in exchange for the right to lease air and naval base sites in British colonies in this hemisphere.

The new plan to build 200 additional cargo ships, to cost between $300,000,000 and $350,000,- 000, was announced by the President at his press conference yesterday.

But he turned aside questions as to whether this would aid Britain in any way or result in the release of American ships to the British.

Conant May Get W. A. White Post

Harvard University Head
First on List of Nine

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—The name of President James Bryant Conant of Harvard University headed a list of nine persons mentioned today as possible successors to William Allen White, Kansas editor, as chairman of the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies.

The Boston Post, quoting "reliable sources," said Conant's selection "is expected to take place next Tuesday when the policy board and executive council of the committee meet to choose White's successor."

The New York Herald Tribune said Wendell L. Willkie also was being considered for the post which White relinquished Thursday.

"It was understood," the Herald Tribune said, "that Willkie's name was included in a tentative poll being taken by telegraph among the executive committee members."

The Herald Tribune said others mentioned included Conant, former Governor John G. Winant of New Hampshire, former Senator
Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont,
Governor Lloyd Stark of Missouri,
Mrs. Dwight Morrow, Dr. Frank Kingdon, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati, O., attorney.

Middletown on August 11, last,
was made to Justice Schirick Friday by Adelaide Gablenz against Joseph Gottlieb. Lawrence Levine appears for the plaintiff.

Application is made by defendant to change the trial from Ulster county to New York and the plaintiff asked by cross motion that the action be retained in Ulster county. Application was made for transfer to New York on the grounds the plaintiff does not live in Ulster county. The plaintiff claims she has a summer residence in Ulster county and works here at Ellenville for about six months in the year. Convenience of witnesses is the reason plaintiff asks the action be kept in Ulster county.

Affidavits were filed and the court allowed five days for defendant to file additional affidavits.

White Eagles Beat Polkas, 32-28; City Loop Resumes Play

Don Tucker Sparks Locals in Scoring Win Over Polkas

Eagles Regained Slim Lead After Trailing for Two Sessions; Wutlich Scores 12 Points

The White Eagles trailed for two quarters last night at the White Eagle Hall but found themselves just in time during the closing session to turn the tide of the contest and come through with a 32 to 28 triumph over the Poughkeepsie Beer Barrel Polkas.

Set to put the handcuffs on Frank Tatarzewski, the Eagles' high-scoring forward, the Polkas just about succeeded but passed up on one other local cager, Don Tucker, who was the difference between defeat and victory last night. Don pumped in five baskets for 10 points and gave the Eagles a well-earned win.

Edge in First

Kingston got off to a slim 6-4 margin in the first period but fell under the gruelling attack of the Bridge City tossers in the second quarter. Ray Wutlich, the visitors' left forward pepped the Poughkeepsie club and found himself the game's highest point-getter with 12 markers.

In the third period the Polkas took the driver's seat again and continued to find good use of it until the Eagles found the scoring range in the fourth and final stanza. Then the boys of Frank Wojciechowski came to life and took over possession of the lead.

But it was Don Tucker all the way as far as the victory was concerned. Limited to very little action in the season to date, Tucker jumped at the chance last night and proved himself to be a very profitable man to have around.

Missing five foul chances the White Eagles were forced to do all their scoring from long shots. The Beer Barrel Polkas managed to flip two short shots through the hoop.

Charity Grid Game Will Not Be Played

Participants in Shrine Game Branded Pros

Los Angeles, Jan. 4 (AP)—Thirty-nine eastern and western football stars, who came here planning to take part in a charity contest next Sunday, were headed toward their classrooms today because of cancellation of the game.

Branded by the A.A.U. as "professionals" were Tom Harmon, Francis Reagan, Forest Evashevski and the others.

Actor Alan Mowbray, head of the British War Relief Association of Southern California, blamed "almost unworkable interference" for the failure of plans for a game between the teams which garnered $60,000 for the San Francisco unit of the Shriners' Crippled Children's Hospital through a New Year's Day contest there.

Tickets had been printed and sold for the game in the 100,000 capacity Los Angeles Coliseum. The contest was barred finally because, Coliseum Manager Ralph O. Chick explained, directors were not convinced that the game was "on a strictly amateur basis."

In San Francisco William Coffman, managing director of the shrine game, had said that "several players told their coaches they have been offered certain cash sums to play in the Los Angeles game."

In addition, the Amateur Athletic Union in New York declared all participants in the shrine game professionals except Fred Hartman of Rice. Hartman was said to have been the only player who obtained A.A.U. permission to compete in the San Francisco game.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 4 (AP)—Some times you can make adversity pay off. . . . On Thanksgiving Day, Texas sent an end down the field, had him check up to draw in the secondary, then shot a pass to a speeding back for the touchdown that blasted the Texas Aggies out of the Rose Bowl. . . . Okay, what happens? . . . Last Wednesday the Aggies borrowed the play. . . . They sent End Bill Henderson down the field, had him check up, and down the field galloped Alabama Smith like old Mercury himself, to catch a 62-yard aerial which won the ball game from Fordham. . . . Nope, you never know how things are going to turn out.

Ouch Dept.

Cooke Offers Plan

Miami, Fla., Jan. 4 (AP)—Inter-American tennis competition as a substitute for the war-interrupted Davis Cup matches is advocated by Elwood Cooke, member of a United States troupe just back from a three-months swing to South American courts. Cooke said he found tennis on the upgrade south of the Equator and that the United States players encountered unexpectedly stiff competition in making a clean sweep of the four tournaments. South American players, he declared, "rank right up with the second ten in this country."

Committee Seeking Final

Okay on Night Events;

Good Meet Assured

by Skating Club

Poor skating conditions forced the second postponement of the Middle Atlantic speed skating championships which were to be held in Newburgh Sunday afternoon. The races had been previously scheduled for New Year's Day.

Although no official word has been released by the committee it is understood that the races may be held at night unless the weather gives the backers a break soon with cold weather.

The Middle Atlantic speed skating championships have never been held at night due to no arc-light accommodations. However, there is adequate lighting facilities at the Rec rink and before very long it will probably be announced that the races will be held under the lights.

One of the finest fields will be entered in the 1941 championships judging from the list announced recently by the Middle Atlantic Skating Association.

Newburgh Boxer Makes Big

Hit With Garden Fans

in Scoring Close

Ring Victory

New York, Jan. 4 (AP)—All was confusion today as to just who was fighting whom last night for a shot at the middleweight championship.

Billy Soose, the "glamour boy" from Penn State College, and Tami Mauriello, a rough, tough kid from the Bronx, were supposed to be "it." But when all the shooting ended at Madison Square Garden, cement-chinned Ernie Vigh, out of Newburgh, N. Y., who was cast simply in a "supporting role," gave most of the 13,038 on-lookers the idea that he could lick any 160-pounder around, and particularly the main eventers, Soose and Mauriello.

For, while Soose used boxing ability, a big edge in reach and ring experience, to win a narrow split-decision over Mauriello, Vigh showed the class of a "stake horse" in coming from behind to whip Coley Welch, an Irish wallop from Portland, Maine, by a margin as thin as "head" and "tail" of a dime.

As a result, not even Promoter Mike Jacobs was sure of the next step in the middleweight program. Before-hand, he had indicated that, if Soose won, he would send Billy in against Bridgroom Overlin, who holds New York state and California sanction as champion. But after Vigh and Welch had the "house" standing on its feet and roaring from bell to bell, he thought it might be a good idea to pair the bulk-necked up-stater and the lanky boxing stylist from Farrell, Pa.

Also up for some "eliminating" on last night's card was the lightweight division, with Dave Castilloux, the Canadian champion, and Aldo Spoldi, the European titlist, solving the problem.

But after Castilloux outpointed Spoldi in a dull fight, Hympie Canlin, manager of Lew Jenkins, contended "both eliminated themselves."

Local Poultry Competes

In New York Show

New York, Jan. 3 (Special)—Fine poultry belonging to Augustus J. Fischer of 22 Mary's avenue, Kingston, and John D. Merchant, of Jefferson avenue, Catskill, are on exhibition at the Capitol Hotel here where they are competing with the barnyard aristocracy of the United States for highest honors. The occasion is the 41st annual New York Poultry Show, which has just opened for a five-day stay with a capophony that could come only from the 2,500 turkeys, geese, ducks, pigeons and other birds that make up the show.

The judging, already begun, will be completed on Sunday, when the best of breeds will be named.

Of special interest to early visitors were a toe-dancing guinea hen, a crested curassow from Brazil and a Japanese Phoenix fowl, a sacred bird in Japan, which never leaves its perch. Long and cream-colored of body, the fowl has a long black tail tipped with green. When it is taken from its perch for exercise, the handlers wrap the tail in cloth to protect its plumage.

Boss Jimmy Wilson of the Cubs is "high" on Lou Stringer, his new second base hope—but he can't see anyone pushing Billy Herman, the Bruins' guardian of the middle bag for several seasons, out of the picture, at least in 1941. Billy is expected to fight it out with the Coast sensation for the keystone—and if Stringer wins the job, then Herman will be asked to try to run Stanley Hack off third. Wilson said he was set on his outfield—with Lou Novikoff in left, Hank Leiber in center and Bill Nicholson in right.

"What's all this stuff about the Phillies paying poor wages?" frothed Doc Prothro. "I would like you to see the books of the club and you would get some surprises."

Still in Lead With Six

Straight Wins; List of

Games Scheduled

Due to the Christmas holidays action in the City Basketball League has been postponed until next week when on Tuesday evening the league play will resume for the balance of the season.

As the circuit goes along two teams are still in undisputed possession of first place in respective leagues—Cadets in B and Simmons Dairy in A—both clubs having won six straight contests.

Simmons Dairy trails the Saugerties club by a half-game with five triumphs and a setback.

Both league leaders seem to be safe for at least another week according to the schedule of games this coming week. Simmons Dairy tangles with Rowe's Bees, fifth in the standings while the Cadets will meet Morans, a fourth place club with two wins and three setbacks.

Pat Bowers is the number one scorer for both divisions with 81 markers. He is trailed by Perry of the Cadets with 53, Lou Sapp of Keystones with 53 and Snyder of the Cadets with 52.

send you to jail for contempt, and you won't be able to make any payments then," said Justice Schirick. Sorrentino continued to argue with the court that it was impossible to support his family because he had to protect his savings and did not earn money sufficient to pay the court's demands. He promised later to pay the $100 counsel fees when he could rent bungalows. This would be several months in the future and he said while he had not paid the $20 a week demanded by the court order, he had made "presents" to his children.

"Pay the money demanded by the court first and then make presents if you can," said Justice Schirick.

Justice Schirick concluded the matter by giving Sorrentino a chance to make payments in installments. He will pay $25 counsel fees during the next 30 days and also pay his wife $15 a week. If he fails to make these payments he will be brought back to court and sent to jail for contempt. He is to pay $25 counsel fees each month until the $100 is paid.

Crowell Is Named Farm Bureau Head

Other Officers Elected at Annual Session

Directors of the Ulster County Farm Bureau met at the Farm Bureau office Friday afternoon for reorganization.

DeWitt G. Crowell of Wallkill was elected president of the Farm Bureau for the coming year. He succeeds C. C. DuMond of Ulster Park, president for the past eight years. Mr. DuMond, who is president of the State Farm Bureau Federation and a member of the executive board of the national association, asked that his name be not considered for re-election, because of the press of these other duties.

Arthur W. Kurtz of New Paltz was elected vice president; Elmer Fisher of Highland, secretary, and E. W. Hathaway of Kingston was re-elected treasurer.

Following the meeting a dinner in honor of the retiring president was given at the Stuyvesant Hotel. During the dinner Mr. Crowell, on behalf of the directors, presented to Mr. DuMond a brief case, in recognition of his long and faithful service to the Farm Bureau as its presiding officer.

Examination and Change of Venue Petitions Made

An application for examination before trial was made yesterday to Justice Schirick in an action brought by Lewis Ball of Catskill against Addison J. Tooley of Syracuse.

N. Joseph Freedman of Catskill appeared for plaintiff and asked that the examination be held at Catskill. Joseph H. Forman, appearing for Higgins, Torney, O'Hara and Young of Syracuse, opposed the examination in Catskill and asked that it be held in Syracuse.

Mr. Forman did not oppose an examination but asked the court to make the examination specific as to certain points and asked that it be held in Syracuse, where the defendant resides rather than bring parties to Catskill. Justice Schirick reserved decision.

Motion to change the place of trial of two actions now appearing on the January calendar was made Friday to Justice Schirick. They are actions for assault brought by Gussie Haberman against Henry Goldstein and Lee Steir. Lawrence Levine appears for plaintiff and Philip Kodner for defendant by LeRoy Lounsberry.

The defendants ask that the cases be moved to New York for convenience of witnesses and also on the grounds that all parties reside in New York and none have residences in Ulster.

The plaintiff alleges that she lives in Ellenville during half of the year. The defense contends that Ulster is not her residence and that she like many others comes to Ulster county for vacation. Decision was reserved.

Will Have Jury Trial

Henry Higgins and Richard Banks, both of Ellenville, will air their difficulties in Justice Percy Bush's court, town of Ulster, on January 14, when a jury trial will be held. The men were originally arrested on December 28 on disorderly conduct charges. Higgins is facing the disorderly conduct charge and Bank a third degree assault charge.

A conservation department rescue squad in Wisconsin, answering a call that told of ducks being frozen in the surface of Lake Mendota, found that coots and ducks were merely taking a nap on the little remaining open water in this area. The birds were able to leave on their own power when the men approached.

No Glory Involved

There is no glory in it. For reasons best known to itself, the British general staff has not let the news get about. The British military sources with whom I talked say some of the raiding parties have reached as far inland as Amiens. These authorities consider the raids highly insignificant—an indication of the way the British generals are thinking. They contend that the war will not be won till one side launches a successful major invasion against the other. They say that Britain has demonstrated it will take more than aerial bombardment to force her to her knees. By the same token they reason that Britain can never hope to knock Germany out from the air alone.

Letters Quickly Written If You Know the Rules

Learn to Write Charming Notes

"At last a precious three minutes in which to write you!" Three minutes? Yes, a charming note can be dashed off as quickly. You need only know a few tricks — and knowing them, how much easier to hold friends! No more putting off letters and offending people — because each letter means that you must stave minutes on end, wondering how to begin, what to say. No more writing dully "everything is about the same here!"

You begin with a dash of "you," a very simple rule. Just write about one of your friend's interests: "The club is carrying on, but nobody can fill your niche." And then a little "I," for friends like to know what you are doing. "Big news of the week is that I won the bridge prize—yes, me, the utter dud." In a jiffy you've written a lively note.

Or do points of etiquette, grammar paralyze your pen? You can quickly check on what's right. Address a widow not as "Mrs. Mary Jones," but as "Mrs. John Jones." Avoid such errors as writing "liable" for "likely." Invitations, letters of congratulation, sympathy — you write these easily, too, with the help of our 32-page booklet. Gives many sample letters for social and business occasions. Has pointers on English, letter etiquette. Send 10c in coin for your copy of GOOD LETTER-WRITING MADE EASY to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Improving Human Race

Abuse of alcohol, faulty system of schooling and the narrowing of man's productive time, are the three great problems that challenge medicine, psychiatry and modern science today, Dr. C. Charles Burlingame, of Connecticut, one of the pioneers in mental treatment, recently said. The mental weakness of men and women, according to Dr. Burlingame, is contributed by "mis-education" which permits a college education for all who wish it, even though they may not have the brain for white collar training; the control of alcohol and its removal from the category of social and health problems.

Out at Sun Valley, Idaho, where skiing is the thing, there is a marked trend from ski-pants to ski-skirts, which are made with a deep pleat to give plenty of room for action. Sport stylists attribute the growing popularity of skirts to the increasing proficiency of women on the ski slopes. They're not afraid of falling down!

Well informed neutral aviation sources expect Britain to gain aerial superiority with American assistance by next July or August. At the same time they believe Britain will have manufactured enough tanks and armored cars so that she can attempt a full-dress continental invasion.

Some expect her to try to go in through the German back-door—via the Brenner Pass (this on the supposition that she will have knocked out Italy by then) or via Rumania. Others say the terrain and communications problem would be too difficult—especially through the Balkans. They predict a frontal assault from some such point as Dunkerque.

They say the British can't move until they have disposed of the Italians. But if and when they have, this would leave the fleet free plus a large part of the Near Eastern army. The plan would be to push in with the fleet, land a body of mechanized troops, then with planes cooperating push a swath to Germany.

Insurance Issue Will Be Decided In Court Action

A question as to whether industrial policies issued by an insurance company can be legally assigned, will be decided in an action brought by James M. Murphy, against Michael Augustine, administrator, of the estate of Albert Parkowski. Four actions are pending in Supreme Court and appear on the January calendar as number 13 in the preferred list.

Louis G. Bruhn appeared at special term Friday before Justice Schirick and asked for a summary judgment while H. LeRoy Gill and Walter Gill appeared in opposition and asked for judgment on pleadings, claiming the four actions did not come under the rule which would permit summary judgment to be directed by the court.

There is also a question of fact involved, whether at least one of the policies was not issued after the assignment to Murphy. This is disputed by the plaintiff and there is an allegation that the notary public before whom the assignment was taken made an error in dating the instrument.

Parkowski took out four policies with the Prudential Insurance Company between 1921 and 1928. Later he died. All four policies were assigned to James M. Murphy. The insurance company has paid the money into court pending settlement of the dispute.

Mr. Murphy alleges the four policies were assigned to him as collateral for loans and that payments were made on the policies by him. The "error" in the assignment date is explained by a statement that the policy was issued in 1928 but when the notary public, Mr. Murphy's wife, took the instrument and dated it she made an error in the year. The assignment was made on January 5, 1929, after the policies were issued but "it being so close to the new year she dated the instrument 1928" being so used to writing that date, counsel explained. It was an error which many make so close to the new year Mr. Bruhn explained to the court.

In May Justice Bergan granted an order substituting the name of the administrator in place of the Insurance Company since the company has deposited the money involved in court pending determination as the rightful beneficiary.

The question of validity of the assignment is raised by the defendant as well as the time of delivery. The defendant claims the assignment was made in 1928 before the last policy had been issued and claims that there is also a question as to some of the dates. Mr. Gill told the court that there was some evidence that the date 1929 had been changed to 1928 on one of the policies and asked the court to closely inspect the policies offered in court. Mr. Gill also told the court that Mr. Murphy was an undertaker and it might be supposed that the policies had been transferred in anticipation of payment of funeral expenses, but this was not the fact. Mr. Murphy had not been the undertaker.

Mr. Gill questioned the legality of the assignment and delivery and also whether industrial policies such as involved could be assigned or must be paid to the estate of deceased.

Justice Schirick took the paper and reserved decision.
